“The National Science Foundation (NSF) will not tolerate sexual harassment, other forms of harassment, or sexual assault within the agency, at awardee organizations, field sites, or anywhere NSF-funded science and education is conducted.”

- Federal Register Notice announcing new NSF term and condition regarding sexual harassment, other forms of harassment, and sexual assault (83 FR 47940 ), September 21, 2018
NSF and Title IX

• NSF’s Title IX regulation: 45 CFR §618
  • Prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex in educational programs and activities receiving Federal financial assistance such as NSF awards.
  • ODI limits its operational jurisdiction to NSF-funded programs and activities at grantee institutions.
  • Sexual and gender-based harassment are forms of discrimination prohibited by Title IX.
  • Requires awardees to designate a Title IX Coordinator, adopt and publish a grievance (complaint procedures) and provide notification for both

<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Pre-Award Compliance</td>
<td>Done via submission of an electronic certification at the time of proposal submission. Can do individual pre-award reviews on a case-by-case basis (i.e., indicators of non-compliance are known prior to award decision)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Post-Award Compliance</td>
<td>The goal of post-award compliance reviews is to ensure grantee compliance with NSF civil rights regulations, provide meaningful, technical assistance to all grantees that help strengthen their current compliance efforts as well as identify and report on best practices.</td>

Who Must Comply With Title IX?

- Recipients of NSF awards that operate education programs
- Limited to education programs or activities; applies only to the participants of education programs (i.e., students and employees) operated by the awardee.
- Title IX compliance is also triggered by:
  - Grant or donation of federal property and interests in property.
  - Detail of Federal personnel and training by Federal personnel.
- Does not apply to Federal agencies.
Title IX Compliance Reviews

• NSF conducts at least two on-site Title IX reviews of NSF funded programs at colleges and universities per fiscal year

• Reviewed programs include academic departments that receive NSF grants

• Site selection criteria include Total dollar amount of NSF grants to the university, Number of PI receiving grants, type of program/department, known Title IX compliance issues

• Coordinate site selection with other agencies to avoid duplicative efforts
Complaints of Discrimination

- NSF investigates complaints of discrimination, harassment and retaliation under Title IX.
- Employee complaints (i.e. faculty, staff, postdocs) are usually referred to the US Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.
- Complainants may choose between the awardee Title IX complaint process or file with NSF.
- NSF limits complaint investigations to those programs, PIs, students that receive NSF funding.
- Anonymous complaints may be filed, but there may be limits to what can be investigated or remedied without Personal Identifiable Information.
Recent attention to sexual misconduct has led NSF to implement several new initiatives. NSF has actively addressed sexual misconduct in NSF Awardee programs funded by academic and research institutions.

- Media reports of sexual harassment by prominent scholars and researchers in academia
- #MeToo movement, also #astroSH, #MeTooPhD, #MeTooSTEM and others
- It is a violation of NSF’s Title IX regulations when a grantee institution fails to address known incidents of sexual misconduct.
Why is this important to NSF?

• Safe and civil environments allow scientific ecosystems to thrive, while unsafe environments disrupt the entire scientific ecosystem, discouraging scientists -- particularly young scientists -- harming their careers and scientific progress.

• NSF’s mission is to promote the progress of science; to advance the national health, prosperity, and welfare; and to secure the national defense; and for other purposes.

• NSF recognizes that to enable scientists, engineers and students to work at the outermost frontiers of knowledge, the agency must be a role model for teamwork, fairness, and equity.
What Has NSF Done to Address Harassment?

• Office of Diversity and Inclusion (ODI) hired a senior manager to administer NSF Awardee compliance with Title IX.

• NSF is now conducting Title IX Compliance reviews of institutions

• ODI provided Congressional testimony in February, 2018 as a part of their review of sexual harassment and misconduct in science
What Has NSF Done? (Cont’d)

• The Director established an internal sexual harassment taskforce to examine and collect promising practices and model codes of conduct

• NSF launched a dedicated web portal [www.nsf.gov/harassment] to consolidate policies and procedures, promising practices, and frequently asked questions relating to sexual and other forms of harassment

• The Director issued Important Notice 144, dated February 8, 2018.

• NSF expects all awardees to establish and maintain clear and unambiguous standards of behavior to ensure harassment-free workplaces wherever science is conducted. This includes activities at all research facilities and field sites and during conferences and workshops.

• Announces ODI’s establishment of a web portal dedicated to information on how to address harassment in NSF-funded programs https://www.nsf.gov/od/odi/harassment.jsp
• “As an NSF employee you must inform ODI immediately if you become aware of a harassment issue in an NSF-funded program, project, or institution, including a complaint of sexual harassment, whether the issue occurred on campus, in the field, at a conference, at a facility, or elsewhere.”

• NSF Program Division/Office staff (Program Officers, Divisions Directors and other staff) who award and monitor grants may be the first in NSF to get these reports from the Principal Investigators (PIs) Office of Sponsored Projects Staff, other personnel working on awards or with students, postdocs
  • They refer reports to ODI.
NSF Proposal & Award Policies & Procedures Guide (PAPPG) – Conference Attendance Codes of Conduct
